Description:

- Vocational training school under the Lao Ministry of Education and Sports since 1964
- Supported by the Federal Republic of Germany since 1993
- Currently around 1,500 students, offers different vocational training courses
- English is already an integral part of the training courses, but at a low level
- The German engineering company BHS Corrugated (which shareholders founded Angels for Children) runs the "Recruitment and Training Programme" (www.rtp-laos.com) at the Lao-German Technical. Teaching English in Laos is an integral part of this vocational training program. Conditions are similar to the three schools supported by Angels for Children.

Duration of the internship: 2-6 months

Tasks: In-service teacher training for Lao English teachers in didactics, methodology and English language, development of teaching material, teaching students of chosen classes, organizing workshops, project documentation, posts for the project blog

Requirements: Language training especially for adults, patience and intercultural competences, creativity and team-work, e.g. for the further development of material

Challenges: Socialist Least Developed Country, English as a school subject only started 15 years ago, very low level of English throughout the country, lacks in school management

Accommodation: Bungalow right next to the school, local standard

Funding: Flights, accommodation and food are covered by BHS Corrugated (when staying less than three months, daily allowance for food is not covered)

Recent interns: Denise Burkhardt, Lena Wink (Team III), Amelie Reiling, Christiane Morlok, Stephanie Schulz (Team IV), Ariane Kummetz, Sandra Uhlig, Janina Adelberg (Team V), Anna-Lena Hajek, Tasja Reule (Team VI), Svea Röhm, Tara Wedemeyer (Team VI.5) (c.f. their final reports at the AAA)

Communication: with Johannes Zeck from Angels for Children/BHS Corrugated via phone or mail
